Mauager Brooks's Henefit To-Night. The music-loving people of Memphis could avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy a grand vocal and instru-mental concert which will be given at the Memphis Theater to-night for the benefit of Manager Jee Brooks. Elsewhere is published the programme of the concert, together with the names of the ladies and gentlemen who are to engage in the different parts of the entertainment. It will be seen that the vocal and instrumental selections are of the very latest kind, such, indeed, as commend themselves to the attention and appreciation of the most critical. The programme is not only excellent in the merit of its selections, but has also a variety which speaks well for the taste of Prof. E. Levy, under whose direction the concert is to be given. The ladies and gentlemen whose names appear in the programme are musicians and artists of recognized talent, epjoying the confidence and the admiration of the Memphis public. Justice.

EDITORS APPEAL-It affords me letters from Dr. Morrow showing conclusively that he was neither so poor when elected, nor so very rich now, as has been alleged; fully satisfying me that he was under no necessity of using State credit for his private purposes, and that he did not do so. I regret that the doctor declines making his statements public, as I am satisfied the rumors alluded to have caused more or less of prejudice in the minds of many members of the last legislature, which his statements would effectually dispel.
J. M. GALLOWAY. Northwestern Connections.

EDITORS APPEAL-If Memphis hopes

promise, and whose programme will be duly submitted in a few days for the con-struction of the "Memphis and St. Louis railroad." If Memphis will do her part now, the enterprise is beyond question, and I trust her citizens will not let this, no doubt the best, and perhaps the last, opportunity escape them for getting this long talked of road. St. Louis, May 1, 1875. The Protective Tariff. EDITORS APPEAL-The New England manufacturers have for nearly half a century proclaimed that manufacturing cannot prosper in America without the protection of tariff laws. They have received the protection asked for, and he consumers in this country have thereby been made to pay more for goods than they would have paid if the tariff laws had not existed. While this protection is given to American manufacturers by an American congress, upon the plea that without such a tariff foreign manufacturers could come here and undersell them, it seems that the tables have been turned, or to speak more to the point, our tariff laws force us to pay our own manufacturers more than otherwise we would have to pay the foreigner who would bring his goods to us for sale. While at the same time this is transpir-ing here, American manufacturers are competing in other countries with their home manufacturers. From a recent report of the export trade of the United States for the past fiscal year, it will be seen that this country experted to other countries merchandise to the amount of $693,039,054. Of this amount there was shipped direct to England alone goods amounting in value to $355,876,292, and to Ireland and Scotland $64,690,216, and in all to Great Britain $440,945,870. It is against the British manufacturer that New England has clamored for protection. The value of merchandise brought to this country from Great Britain during the last fiscal year was $255,180,597, making a difference in favor of America of $185,765,273. The total exports from this country for the same period was $57,000,000 more than the total imports protection from congress. If we are able to ship goods of the value of $57,-000,000 to other countries in excess of what those countries ship to us, does it not seem that it is time that protection should cease in this country? This is the case so far as manufacturing is affected by the laws of congress; but it is tected a little by the enactment of laws that will enable them to purchase goods

ing the appeal and requirements which will be made at their hands by gentley, the sworn statement of which shows that they sold last year the mam-moth number of two hundred and fortymen who are prepared to do what they one thousand six hundred and seventynine machines, almost three times more than were sold by any other company. The largely increasing business of the Memphis branch, under the efficient management of Mr. J. B. Carpenter, engages the ser-vices of one hundred and fifty persons. The manger, Mr. Carpenter, superintends the business of the company for a large extent of country, embracing the States west and south of Memphis. He has every reason to believe that his sales this year will amount to twenty-five hundred machines; a fact which is not astonishing when we take into consideration the superior excellence and new improvements in the Singer machines and ie enterprise and energy which characterize the well-directed efforts and judicious management of Mr. Carpenter. He announces that he has rem his place of business from No. 2731 Main street to the new and beautiful rooms, No. 279 Main street, where can be found the Singer sewing machine in every variety of style, finish and improvements. This place has been fitted up quite excellently, a new front being among the attractive features of the establishment, where can also be had the best brands of silk and twist cotton thread, machine oil, and Singer sewing machine needles, the price of which has been reduced to forty cents per dozen. The Singer sewing machines are the best, most simple, useful and serviceable, as well as the cheapest, ever offered to the
